[From the Hartford Times, July 10.]

Some at me showt the last of July a saranger made his appearance in Bristol, giving his name as Francis, and professing to be from Maine, and to be desirous of "purchasing hot see." He hired a team, drove out to Plymouth, the nee back to Plainville, and seemed to be poking about in a vague and uncertain way One night about ten o'o lock some of the good people of Bristol were alarmed on he aring agonized shrieks as of somebody in mortal sufferl; ig. The noise was traced to a spot in the road near the itockinet factory, where there is an embankment, the sides of which slope down eight or ten feet from the iroad—so situated, however, that the spot was never regar ded as dangerous, or as needing even a railing. The st vanger was found lying on his back and yelling dismally. He said he shad broken his collar bone, if not his back, at at one or two of his ribs; but, strange to say, his horse and wagon were found all right, the wagon not even up set, and the horse all harnessed, and quietly feeding. The man, with many groans, was taken up and carried to Mr. S. E. Root's frouse, where he remained a week, safe ring greatly, and perfectly freipless. He was sune his cell ar-bone was broken, but Dr. Way, who was called daily a outend him, outling 'tree it.' He spit blood, from injuriers sustained by his lungs; but the doctor insisted on exan thing his mouth for the seat of the injury, he however eliscovered nothing. The suffering stranger was removed to the botel, where he languished in torment for another wasek, when he began to improve, and gradually got so be could limp about the office, and spoke of suizg the town for one thousand dollars, but would 'mot abate anyther cent.' At last, however, he agreed to take the sun of one hundred in cash, paid down. This he received, and on Saturday last, feeling better, thought he would backed the roughkeepes boas, and the standard and the race.

It appears that the stroke carsman of the boat, named Stevens, was suspected of desiring to play foul before the boats started. He had, it was reported, agreed to permit the Poughkeepste boat 4c be beaten. He being the principal carsman a great deal depended on his efforts. The friends of Mr. Stevens denied the imputation in the most foreible language, but could not convince a portion of the public that the charge was unfounded, and he was denounced and threatened that if he carried out his alleged intention it should cost him his life.

The race, it will be remembered, resulted in favor of the New York boat. Several protests were entered, however, against giving up the main stakes, and in a number of instances side bets were announced as "off." Great excitement followed the close of the contest, and there were very lively times in Poughkeepsic all night Tuesday. About ten clock on Tuesday night, Stevens with some of his friends was standing near Dobbs' Saloon discussing the result. A party, of which a returned soldier named Thomas De Mott was one, entered into a discussion with Stevens and his friends. Be Mott had be theavily on the race, and, it seems, believed the charges against Stevens. What followed is thus described:—

De Mott charged Stevens with having deliberately sold.

Mott had bet heavily on the race, and, it seems, benever the charges against Stevens. What followed is thus described:—

De Mott charged Stevens with having deliberately sold his friends and insured the defeat of the Poughkeepsie crew. Stevens dealed the charge, and offered to bet De Mott that it could not be proved. He Mott denounced Stevens in strong terms, which exasperated Stevens to such a degree that he struck De Mott a powerful blow on the temple, felling him to the earth.

A general row then began, but through the interference of several friends of both the men it was promptly quelled. When De Mott was picked up he was discovered to be dead, to the surprise of every one who witnessed the affair, and who supposed that he had only been stunned. Upon an examination being made, De Mott was found to have received a severe contusion of the forchead, and on the back of the head. Stevens immediately surrendered himself to the authorities, and was locked up for examination.

The body of De Mott was taken to the City Hall to await an inquest. The news of his death spread like wildfire through the city, and created such an excitement that threats were made against several New York sporting men in the city, but fortunately no retailation took place. It is but justice to these gentlemen to add that they are heavy losers themselves by the race, having backed the Poughkeepsle crew to a considerable amount.

The unfortunate death of De Mott, who was favorably known in Poughkeepsie, continued to be the all absorbing topic of conversation yesterday. Stevens, it is said, has evinced the utmost grief in the matter. The body of the deceased will probably be buried to-day.

Telegraphic despatches from Poughkeepsie were yesterday received by sporting men in New York, asserting that the referree and two judges in the late race have made affidavits that the race is foul, and that their decision was rendered through intimidation.

ANOTHER VERRION OF THE AFFAIR.

[From the Poughkeepse Eagle, July 18.]

About ten o'clock last evening, white William Stevens, one of the crew of the four cared boat Floyd T F. Fields, which was beaten in the race on Tuesday, was standing in front of Dobb's railoon, corner of Main and Water streets, he was accessed by a man named Thomas De Mott, formerly a private in Company H. One Hundred and Fiftieth resiment, and a resident of Ulster county, charging Stevens, in an angry tone, with selling the race. Stevens denied doing so, when De Mott repeated the charge. Stevens then strock De Mott with his left hand, knocking him down, after which he (Stevens) walked into Dobb's restaurant, and, proceeding up stairs, sat down to his supper. About fifteen minutes afterwards some one entered the room where he was and informed him that De Mott was dead. Stevens then proceeding inmediately to his residence, and, after informing his folks of the affair, came up town alone and delivered himself up to the authorities.

We had an interview with Stevens at the jail, about eleven o'clock last night, in which he appeared to be much affected over the sad affair, and during which he made to us the above statement of the occurrence.

The body of De Mott was brought to the City Hall, where a corners' it ponest will be held this morning.

The body of De Mott was brought to the City Hall, where a coroner's inquest will be held this morning.

Dr. Cooper, upon examination, found that doceased's neck was broken.

THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

Coroner Haight held an inquest on the body-to-day, when the jury brought in a vertict in accordance with the above facts. Considerable sympathy is manifested for Stevens.

The Stake Money Paid Over.

The stakeholders of the $6,600, for which the rewing match was made on the North river, on Tuesday last, have paid the funds into the hands of the New York crew, upon the order of the referees, thus settling the vexed matter as to which club was actually the minner.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

In your report of the four-cared race at Poughkeepsie, on the 18th inst., you say that the odds "were very much in favor of the Poughkeepsie men, on account of their having beaten the same crew (Lary excepted) on the same course last year." As I am the only other party who ever pulled in that crew it might lead to the impression that the George J. Brown crew were defeated by the Poughkeepsie crew while I was a member, which is not the case, as the two crews never met while I was rowing in the Brown. Neither did the rival crews row together last year at Poughkeepsie, or anywhere else. Their last meeting, prior to the Collyer's victory of Tuesday last, was in the summer of 1862.

Respectfully, JOHN J. ECKERSON.

Champion Rowing Match on the Schuylkill.

The champion rower of Fittsburg, Mr. James Hamill, having been challenged by Mr. S. Hut-binson to row him active or ten mile race on the Schuylkill river, at Philadelphia, for $1,000 to $5,000 a side, has accepted the challenge. In his card he says:—

En reply I will say that, having had an introduction to the gentleman or my recent trip to Bosten, I was so impressed with his cize and development, also his formiliar acquaintance with "wherries" and scull boats, that I had nearly made up my mind to resign the championship in his favor. I have come to the conclusion to start for New Lork to-morrow, and after taking another look at him, if he don't searce me too much, I will try and accommodate him with a race on the Schuylkill, and go either distance, for the amount mentioned in his proposition. Should he go for the larger amount, I have been requested by my friend Jim Brawley to say that he will take $1,000 of the betrainself. Should Mr. S. Hutchimson refuse to row after accing him, I will row "any other man" in the United States a far mile race over the Schuylkill course, at Philadelphia, for $1,000 or $2,000 a side, in two weeks after signing articles.

EXAMINATION OF THE SUSPECTED MURDERER OF THE JOYCE CHILDREN—GONCLUSION OF THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

I From the Boston Traveller, July 19.]

John Stewart, of West Roxbury, arressed on suspicion of being concerned in the musier of Isabella M. Joyce and John S. Joyce, in Bussey Woods, June 12, was arraigned this morning before Justice Erastus Worthington in the Grand Jury room at Dedham. Some forty persons were present, most of them witnerses in the case.

District Attorney E. W. Harris appeared for the procecution, and F. D. Ely, Eq., or Bedham, for the prisoner. The accused, attired in his uniform, was brought in attwenty minutes past ten o'clock. He is a thick set person, of medium height, dark hair and cycbrows, blue eyes, and of a pleasant and healthy appearance.

Justice Worthington, on taking his scal, inquired if the government was ready to proceed with the case.

District Attorney Barris said that the government desired a further postponement until next Monday. There were certain mysterious circumstances in this case within were not in yet a condition to bring before the public. If scientific investigations now being made did not result as expected, the government would go no further. Unless fully satisfied that they could present a good case they would not even go into an examination on Monday, but would have the prisoner discharged.

Mr. Ely signified his approval of the course proposed, and that he should be pleased to know whether it would be necessary to have the witnesses for the defence present, on Monday, as he did not wish to cause them needless inconvenience.

Justice Worthington replied that abundant opportunity would be granted after that day.

The case was further postponed till Monday next, at ten o'clock.

We understand that chemical analyses are now being made by two eminent gentlemen of Boston, which, if not resultin rendered the following verdict:—That Isabella M.

John S. Joyce came to their death on the 12th de June, 1865, after the hour of twelve noon, from wou
